A PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY OF GEOGRAPHICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL NAMES

ANCIENT AND MODERN

In this vocabulary, the intention has been to record the names of such persons and places as are of largest interest in history and literature, both ancient and modern. Mere size, however, has not been considered a sufficient reason for inserting the name of a place, nor have all the names of a class, as, for example, the divisions of a country, been included unless each possessed individual distinction. American names, naturally, occupy a relatively large amount of space, but the names of the greater leaders of all countries and the names of all places that are of importance in general history have been included.

Each entry is given the most approved spelling and pronunciation, with alternatives if supported by sufficient usage.

In the geographical entries are given the location of each place, the height of mountain peaks, the highest elevation of mountain ranges or groups, the length of rivers, the population of cities and of countries (in nearest thousands; thus, p. 300 = population 300,000), the area in square miles and the name of the nation having jurisdiction, where this information is of interest, and often some item that marks the place as of note.

In the biographical entries are given (in parentheses), the dates of birth and death, or the date of death (indicated by d.) where this alone is known, or the date of the person's greatest activity (indicated by fl., flourished) where more precise data are lacking. In the case of kings and other rulers is given the date of accession and, also, the date of the end of the reign where this is not the same as the date of death.

The special abbreviations used are explained below. For others, consult the general list of Abbreviations, p. 837.

ABBREVIATIONS

USED IN WRITING AND PRINTING

NOTES: Do not use abbreviations in written or printed matter that consists of formal sentences or connected discourse.

EXCEPTIONS: Mr., Mrs., Messrs., Jr., Sr., when used with proper names; forms like A.B., LL.D., P.M., A.M., B.C., A.D., and a few others of exceptional character are rarely if ever spelled out. Rev., Hon., Dr., Prof., Gov., Gen., while spelled out before surnames, as Governor Robinson, are sometimes used before full names, as Gen. U. S. Grant, though even here the full spelling is preferred in the most formal matter.

Abbreviations are freely used in various headings (as of dates in the superscription of a letter), in tabular statements, commercial accounts, footnotes, references, etc.

Abbreviations of proper names must begin with a capital; others may or may not according to the circumstances of use. The form given in the list is the one commonly used.

An abbreviation with the period at the end, as Dept., Sec., etc., is generally to be used in preference to a contraction using the apostrophe, Dep't, Sec'y, etc.

The forms 1st, 2d (or, less properly, 2nd), 3d (less properly 3rd), 4th etc., used for first, second, third, fourth, etc., as in designating the days of the month, are not, properly speaking, abbreviations, and take no period. In regard to the numerals, I, II, V, etc., used in designating the serial number of a thing, as a page or chapter, usage varies, some using the period; as used after names, as in George V., Leo X., etc., the older and more general usage is to use the period.

The sign & (ampersand) is used in names of business firms or corporations, and often in lists, advertisements, etc.; but not in ordinary reading matter.

What an Opportunity for Your School

Webster's New International Dictionary-The Merriam-Webster!

There is always a question to be answered, a new word pronounced, a spelling corrected, or a phrase defined.

A Pupil Asks:—

How large was the great Chinese wall?
What was the Children's Crusade?
What is the height of Pike's Peak?
When did Bismarck die?
What is white coal? etc., etc.

The New International answers all such questions in language, history, geography, biography, fiction, trades, arts, and sciences, with final authority. The type matter is equivalent to that of a 15-volume encyclopedia.

This New Creation is justly regarded as an indispensable article in the schoolroom. It is of fundamental importance for teachers to be familiar with the scope, plan, and arrangement of this new work. The most successful teachers are generally those who consult the dictionary oftenest and with greatest facility, and who teach their pupils the value of constant reference to this vast, handy storehouse of accurate information.

More than 400,000 Vocabulary Terms. 12,000 Biographical Entries.
New Gazetteer, nearly 30,000 Subjects.
Thousands of other References. Over 6000 Illustrations.
2700 Pages. Colored Plates and Half-Tone Engravings.

The Basis of nearly all the Schoolbooks in the country. Indorsed by State School Superintendents. Universally recommended by Statesmen, College Presidents, Educators, and Authors.
